MGGA Schedules Statewide Listening Sessions

Great Falls, MT - The Montana Grain Growers Association has scheduled twelve grower information sessions around the state to hear the concerns of producers and provide more information on new farm bill programs.

MGGA President Matt Flikkema of Manhattan says, "Our annual listening sessions give growers a chance to provide direction on the key issues of the organization. It's very important that we do this in the communities where our members farm."

This year, in response to growers who have requested more information, education and guidance to help them make decisions about participation in new farm programs, we have allowed time on the agenda to discuss how the new ARC and PLC programs can be used as risk management tools.

Both members and non-members are encouraged to attend. Bring your questions and ideas and consider bringing a neighbor, state legislator or prospective member. This is your opportunity to let us know what we can do to improve your grower association. See you there!
